MINE STRIKE IS ENDED

By PHILLIPS J. PECK

WASHINGTON, May 29 (INS)—The soft coal strike was settled this afternoon when the policy committee of the United Mine Workers ratified a contract negotiated earlier by government officials with John L. Lewis, union president.

Official announcement of the settlement will be made by President Truman at the White House at 5 p. m., EDT.

The contract calls for government operation of the mines, with the strikers returning to the pits Friday.

Terms of the contract are said to be acceptable to the mine operators. Officials indicated the mines would be returned to private operation as soon as the operators individually approve the contract.

Miner Chieftain Lewis met with his 250-man policy committee for three and a half hours today. The session ended at 3 p. m.

Report Mine Strike Settled

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—John L. Lewis met with his policy advisors for two hours today as all signs pointed to a settlement of the soft coal strike by nightfall. Senator Lucas (D.) of Illinois, in a floor speech asking support of the President's emergency labor legislation, said the Truman request was responsible for settlement of the rail strike "and the coal strike, which I understand will be settled at 4 o'clock this afternoon."

Lewis smiled broadly as he emerged from the policy committee meeting at UMW headquarters but parried reporters' queries about a settlement with a terse, "no comment."

The policy committee remained in session after Lewis left, but Lewis said there would be no statement from the union at conclusion of the meeting.

Shortly before the session, the UMW's District 6 headquarters in Columbus, O., expressed belief the strike was over and final details of an agreement with government negotiators would be whipped into shape at the policy session.

"We met today at 10:30 a. m. in Washington," Dist. 6 headquarters said. "We will get $1.85 a day raise, five cents a ton for our health fund, and $100 vacation pay."

Dist. 6 embraces Ohio and the West Virginia panhandle.

The message that the end of the coal strike was at hand was telephoned from Washington by T. J. Price, secretary-treasurer of Dist. 6.

"Details of the settlement will be worked out at the conference," Dist. 6 reported. "We received only the bare skeleton of the agreement."

Lewis was scheduled to meet during the afternoon with Interior Secretary Krug, who, as federal mines boss, has been conducting the negotiations with the UMW.

There was speculation that the conference between Krug and Lewis would be held at the White House and that President Truman would announce the strike settlement.

As Lewis left the union policy group, reporters asked "is the strike over?"

"Well, I'm compelled to give you the same answer, boys: no comment."

Lewis then was asked if "things look favorable toward a settlement." He simply grinned, shifting a cigar in his mouth.

Newsman at UMW headquarters noticed a sign posted there a few days ago to announce deferment of any policy committee meeting had been removed. The notice had said there would be no further meetings of the 250-man group until the status of the miners under the Smith-Connelly labor disputes act was clarified.

The Smith-Connelly act prohibits any person from inciting a strike or conspiring to strike in a government-operated mine.

SANDRA DILDINE
Death Halts Suffering

Girl, 4, Long Doomed, Dies In Her Sleep

DETROIT, May 29 (AP)—Little Sandra Dildine, 4-year-old golden-haired sweetheart of suburban St. Clair Shores, died in her sleep today, months after medical science abandoned hope of prolonging her life.

Death came quietly in the small, white frame home where Sandra was brought on a stretcher last autumn, suffering from an incurable tumor.

The little girl gained national attention in March when she celebrated a fourth birthday which her physicians had said she might never reach.

Her father, Earl, released from the Army to spend the last days with his daughter, was called from his work at the St. Clair shores fire department by news of her death.

The child, described by her mother, Irene, as a "beautiful, healthy, roushneck," was stricken last September.

Senate Speeds to Beat Strike Draft by 6 P. M.

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—The Senate agreed today to vote by 6 p. m. on the question of knocking the draft-strikers provision from President Truman's emergency labor legislation. U. S. Jury Probes Northampton Vet Hospital Abuses

U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon today began an investigation of alleged abuse of patients at the Northampton Veterans' Administration Hospital on orders of U. S. Atty. Gen. Tom Clark. The case is to be presented to a federal grand jury here.

Federal officials started an inquiry a month ago when patients at the hospital wrote to the Veterans' Administration at Washington they were being abused and handled roughly by attendants.

Undercover agents of the administration went to work in the hospital as attendants and later reported their findings. As a result, two attendants have been suspended.

The Veterans' Administration turned the case over to the Department of Justice and Atty. Gen. Clark then issued an order for criminal proceedings against any offenders.

It was learned one of two attendants involved was fired before the suspending order came from Washington. He is said now to be missing.

Flood Waters Still Rising In Two States; 13 Dead

By the Associated Press

On a wild rampage of death and destruction, rivers and creeks boiled out of their banks today to inundate valuable farming and industrial areas in Pennsylvania and New York.

At least 13 persons drowned four others were missing as flood waters, fed by four days of almost continuous rains, spilled relentlessly into homes and business establishments.

Estimates of damage exceeded $3,000,000. Thousands were homeless.

The Susquehanna river raced virtually out of control, striking hardest at Williamsport, Pa. Eighty per cent of that city's industries are flood-bound; 60 per cent of the residential areas are awash in several feet of water. The Susquehanna reached 21 feet at Harrisburg, the Pennsylvania capital city, flooding low-lying areas and cutting some arterial roads.

The Red Cross announced two of its workers and a young woman drowned in flood-swollen Morris run, Tioga County, Pa.

Cecile Kennedy, Red Cross field director at Harrisburg, reported one victim, Miss Innes Williams, was trapped on a bridge after a cloudburst turned the stream into a racing torrent Monday night. The two other women went to assist her and the span collapsed, throwing all three into the water.

The procedure, if approved by the House itself, will give the members no choice on the various Senate amendments except to take all of them or reject all. If they are accepted the measure will go direct to the White House.

If rejected, it would go to a Senate-House committee for possible compromise.

The main amendments voted by the Senate prohibit employer contributions to union-administered welfare funds, incorporate provisions of the House anti-racketeering bill, and extend from 30 to 60 days the prestrike cooling-off period.

The House rules committee recommended the House be given an immediate opportunity to reject or accept without change the Senate version of the Case labor bill.

Reveals Dead Baby Had Been Battered

A 2-year-old South Boston boy, who died yesterday after, according to his mother, he fell and struck his head against the kitchen range, in fact had been "battered on the head with something," Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary announced today after an autopsy. The mother, a 30-year-old divorcee, is under questioning by police.

There was no question but what the baby boy had been "abused," Dr. Leary said. He added: "For the moment I can't tell if the abuse was a factor in the death or the factor."

The medical examiner said a partial microscopic examination indicated a lung condition but it might take him two days to complete his examination in that respect.

"There's something in the lungs," he stated.

Dr. Leary said previously that a preliminary examination had revealed no skull fracture.

The mother told police that she had put the boy to bed after he had run or fallen against the stove, but became alarmed when he failed to awaken several hours later. She said she summoned a doctor who advised her to get the child to the hospital immediately.

Officials at Station 6 said the mother rang in a citizens' alarm and that Patrolmen George F. Hanois and William Black responded and took the child to City Hospital. There he was pronounced dead by Dr. Dante Del Compo, who said there were at least seven head wounds visible but no apparent skull fracture.

The mother, according to police, was unable to give the exact time of the accident.

Wife Fears Mice, Calls in Man, So Vet Wins Decree

No man can move in with another man's wife simply because she is afraid of mice, Judge John V. Mahoney ruled in probate court today.

Thereupon he granted an uncontested divorce to Philip DeAngelo, war veteran, of Hanover st., North End, from Catherine DeAngelo, Oneida st., South End. Testifying for the husband was Sgt. Mark Madden who said he and three other officers raided the Oneida st. address early one Sunday at the instigation of DeAngelo.

Whom should they find, said Madden, but a strange man in the house with Mrs. DeAngelo.

"I asked him what he was doing there," said Madden. "He answered, 'I just moved in because she didn't want to stay alone on account of she is afraid of mice.'"

Another war veteran who won a divorce, under somewhat similar circumstances, was Vincent J. Morrison of Bean ct., Roxbury, awarded a decree from Frances R. Morrison, Dudley st., Roxbury. Morrison testified he found another man with Mrs. Morrison in her bedroom. The man looked "startled," he said.

Josephine Zeller of Huntington ave., Back Bay, was divorced from Samuel Zeller, Prang ave., Back Bay. She said she could never draw him into conversation.

MRS. JOHN PHILIP BRADLEY AND WANDA, 1 Judge's Ruling Saved Them From Cambridge Eviction INSP by Edwin Stephan

No-Eviction-for-Baby Rule Guards 2d Family

Decision of a Cambridge judge that a birth of a baby will not cost a couple their home was expected today to save a second young family from eviction. Mr. and Mrs. Dana K. Russell, who became parents of a son six weeks ago, hailed the ruling of Judge Edward A. Counihan, Jr., in East Cambridge District Court that a lease is not broken when a tenant rears a newborn baby in an apartment. The Russells live in the same Harvard st., Cambridge, apartment house with Mr. and Mrs. John P. Bradley, parents of a year-old daughter.

Mrs. Russell recently received an eviction notice from the Westland Housing Corp., owner of the building.

When Mrs. Bradley was brought into court, as signer of the lease for the Bradley apartment, attorneys for the corporation argued that the lease stated only adults could occupy the apartment, and that she was violating terms of the lease by raising her daughter in the house.

Mrs. Bradley, represented by Atty. George A. Goldstein, declared there was no prohibition in the lease against her having a baby, that if there had been she would never have signed it.

"To eject a lessee in a case like this," Judge Counihan declared, "would be against public policy. I don't want a case like it in here."

Earlier the father of the child, an ex-GI and a teacher at Manton Hall School, Cambridge, said that the trouble started while he was away in the service.

He charged that shortly after the child was born and while he was still in service his wife received her eviction notice.

"Apparently a serviceman's child doesn't have the right to live," Bradley said.

Yesterday's court action recalled a similar case heard by the Court of Appeals of Cuyahoga County, O., in which it was ruled that young couples should not be expected to refrain from having children because their landlords do not want them.

right, Berger said "I feel fine." The shock of his fall was credited with the "miracle."

14 More GI Ship Babies In Hospital

NEW YORK, May 29 (AP)—Fourteen more GI babies, suffering from a "mild form of diarrhea," were taken from the brideship Santa Paula to Fort Hamilton Army hospital today.

Lt. Sheldon Kallen, of the port surgeon's office, said the infants were taken to Fort Hamilton as a "precautionary action." The Santa Paula arrived this morning.

Forty-six additional babies from various brideships were under treatment yesterday at the Army hospital. Six died there during the past week; one died at Fulton, N. Y., one at Paris, Ill., and a ninth at Pittsburgh.

A tenth infant death, apparently from suffocation, was reported by radiogram from the transport John Ericsson, due here tomorrow. Six adults aboard the Santa Paula were reported ill in addition to the babies.

Eight of the babies who died had been passengers aboard the brideship Zebulon B. Vance, which arrived here May 19 from Le Havre. An Army board of inquiry Tuesday night absolved the ship's medical staff in the deaths.

Buckley Renews Fight For Audit of El Books

State Auditor Thomas J. Buckley today at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing renewed his five-year fight to audit the books of the Boston Elevated Railway.

Charging that "the taxpayers have been bled white," he said that $20,000 appropriated in the state budget for an audit by the state Department of Public Utilities be turned over to him, along with another $10,000 after saying he had no confidence that the DPU would conduct a proper audit.

Buckley indicated he knew just where to look for the Elevated waste he has long charged.

"I have under lock and key certain information, and I know what I am after," he said.

"The last Elevated report was stopped when those working on it began to bring out the facts. The Elevated was burning up cars at Everett last year, which could have been used. Meanwhile, they were ordering the Presidential Conference cars—the jerk-and-go cars."

Chief target of Buckley's wrath was Willis B. Downey, vice-president of the Elevated.

"My only opponent in this audit has been Willis Downey," Buckley charged. "He was general counsel for the Elevated in 1941 when I began this fight. His efforts in opposing me have been rewarded since he received a substantial salary in 1944 and now has been jumped to a vice-president at a salary of $18,000 a year."

"While the road was laying off employees in the lower brackets it was increasing the salaries of high paid officials. Downey, for one, gets $18,000 a year as lobbyist, general counsel and vice-president, and the irony of it is that the taxpayers are paying him to work against their own interests."

"In 1945 there were 31 Elevated officials paid in excess of $6000 yearly. Their salaries totaled $300,251 despite the fact that the road lost $915,000 that year according to company report. I consider these salaries top-heavy."

"Depreciations charged off by the road never should have been tolerated. Many millions have been taken away from the people by the road. There is something wrong, either in the bookkeeping of the company or with the top officials."

A year ago, a similar bill by Buckley passed the House but was defeated in the Senate by one vote. The auditor told the committee he is confident that veterans returning to the Senate will surely pass his measure this year. Another who blasted the Elevated management was Rep. Philip McMorro of Boston. He also assailed the DPU, charging outright that the state commission wouldn't do the job that could be accomplished by the state auditor.

"If the audit is made by the DPU and they find out anything it will be hushed up," McMorro charged.

At this point, Rep. Thomas P. Gray (R.) of Springfield said, "I never thought the Democrats covered up anything."

"They are different than the Republicans," replied McMorro. Supporting Buckley was Sen. Chester A. Dolan of Jamaica Plain, who said he would vote in favor of the auditor if it reaches the Senate.

"There is something rotten in the Boston Elevated," he said.

"Mr. Buckley has done a good job as state auditor and should be given the authority to audit the Elevated books. I don't believe the Department of Public Utilities should be taxed with such a job."

Just before conclusion of the hearing, former Rep. Alexander Sullivan of East Boston declared that he was in favor of public ownership of the Elevated. He said if such a condition ever comes about the costs to the taxpayers will go shooting downward unbearably.

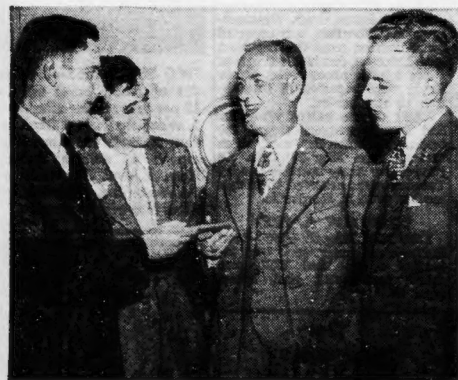

The Ways and Means Committee took the bill under advisement.

14 More Dachau Killers Hanged

LANDSBERG, Germany, May 29 (AP)—Grimly methodical, the United States Army completed today the hanging of 28 Germans responsible for deaths of 300,000 tortured inmates of the Dachau Concentration Camp.

The grisly drama of the gallows continued for four hours, in which 14 men dropped to quick death. Fourteen others were hanged yesterday.

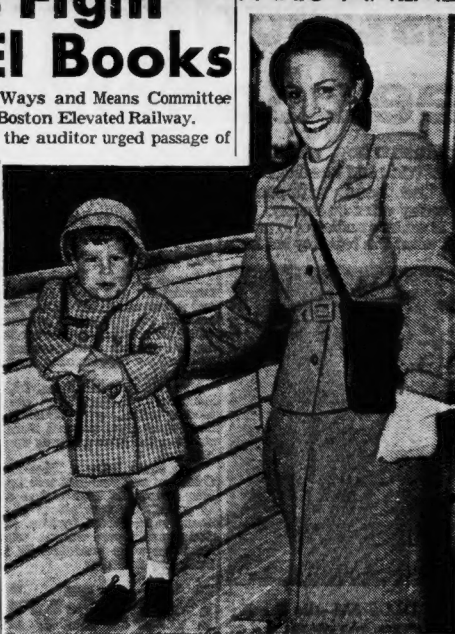

The seventh to climb the 13 steps to one of the twin black scaffolds was Martin Gottfried Weiss, 43, who until the last minute hoped for a reprieve. Weiss was commandant of the camp, and a former prisoner, had volunteered a statement he had done everything he could for inmates. The Army refused to intervene.

Trolia Guilty In Shooting; Free Bride

Joseph Trolia, 23, of Dorchester was found guilty by a Suffolk superior jury today of assault with intent to kill Joseph Barresi, former boxer, while three co-defendants—including Trolia's bride—were freed.

A clash ensued between Judge Edward Voke and Defense Atty. Herbert Callahan at once, with the latter taking exceptions on the verdict and former postponing sentence until Monday.

When asked the verdict, the jury foreman replied:

"Well, I don't know. We don't believe it was premeditated murder. I was assault with intent to kill. That's our verdict."

Trolia had been tried on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Gerald Coyne, 31, of Roxbury, also charged with attempting to murder Barresi in an East Boston cafe last September, was found not guilty.

Also not guilty was Elaine Bendley Trolia, 23, of West Cedar st., Beacon Hill—revealed during the trial as Trolia's bride—and Guy Rendini of Shirley st., Roxbury, charged with being accessory after the fact. Mrs. Trolia ran to her husband's side after the verdict and embraced him until court officers led him away.

In his charge, Judge Voke had said the jury could return a verdict of either assault with intent to murder or assault with intent to kill. Atty. Callahan also had taken an exception to the judge's charge.

Query--Do 100 Get Sticker Fines Back?

After almost 100 defendants in Roxbury court had paid $3 and $5 fines for operating cars without 1946 inspection stickers, Atty. Police were unable to produce a certified copy of the registrar's ruling requiring inspection stickers, and Judge Samuel Eisenstadt ordered the case against John Gallagher dismissed.

"It would appear that a lot of people have refunds coming to them from the State," the judge remarked.

Later, however, Anthony A. Bonzagni, deputy motor vehicle registrar, said he doubted if defendants who had paid fines were entitled to refunds. Bonzagni said certified copies of the sticker regulation had been supplied to all police throughout the State.

A sad touch this year will be the absence of Grand Army men from the memorial exercises in Massachusetts. The State Chapter of the G. A. R. has held its last encampment and the sole Bay State survivor, 98-year-old Charles B. Burt of Springfield, is too feeble to leave his home.

State Com. Burt, however, will not default the day. In the quiet solitude of his home, he will preside with prayer over an invisible encampment.

It will be comrades of the Spanish-American War and intervening wars, down to and including World War II, who will lead this year's tributes in parades, memorial exercises and cemetery pilgrimages.

Nearly every city and town has planned either a parade or public services. Scores of Honor Rolls will be dedicated. Special services will be held for sick and wounded veterans in hospitals.

The Sons of Union Veterans, representing the G. A. R., and the Veterans' Council, comprising all veterans' organizations, will jointly sponsor observances in the Hyde Park district, with a morning parade and union services at the Grand Army lot in Fairview Cemetery.

Chief marshal of the parade, which will start at 9:30 from the Hyde Park Municipal Building, will be Frank Fitzwilliams of John Cleary Camp 34, U. S. W. V. The memorial address at the cemetery services will be given by Rev. Fr. Keegan of the Church of the Most Precious Blood, Hyde Park, with opening prayer by Rev. Guy Outlaw, U. S. Army chaplain.

Preceding the parade, the annual military memorial mass sponsored by Cecil W. Fogg Post 73, American Legion, will be celebrated at the Church of the Most Precious Blood at 8 a. m.

For the first time since the entry of the United States into World War II, the Army and Navy Union will resume its annual pilgrimage to Resthaven Cemetery at Ft. Devens.

A year ago this month the Army and Navy Union presented William Randolph Hearst its gold Medal of Honor for his outstanding service to the nation.

The second annual Memorial Day service of the American Veterans of World War II will be held on Boston Common at 10:30 a. m. in front of the Honor Roll on the Tremont mall. More than 200 sailors and Marines will march from Tremont Temple through downtown streets to the mall for the exercises.

Seven Legion posts will parade from the headquarters of Mattapan Post 128, in Babson st., to Mt. Hope Cemetery, where memorial exercises will be held. The orator will be William G. O'Hare, mail superintendent of the Boston postal district.

The Kearsarge Association of Naval Veterans will hold its exercises at the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument on the Common at 11 a. m.

Chelsea Post, Jewish War Veterans, will hold memorial services at Temple Emanuel in Chelsea at 8 o'clock tonight.

Special exercises will be held in public schools today.

Missing Vet Hid 7 Days In Woods, Eluded Searchers

Most men, when they "want to get a way from it all," usually wind up by staying right where they are and griping because they can't hit for the open, but a week in the woods, sleeping under trees in swamps, eating nothing, subsisting on spring water, is good medicine, according to Robert J. Johnson, 22-year-old war veteran.

Johnson, a Northeastern home at Congress st., Walpole, today, said, "I feel great."

He showed up there yesterday after a rigorous week of communing with nature and assiduously dodging searchers, including his father, who spent three days and nights in the woods.

"I wanted to get away from everything," he explained. "There wasn't any particular thing. So I just drove the car into the Mendon woods and left it there. Then I wandered. I didn't eat a thing all week."

"I dropped 10 pounds but I feel good. I feel great."

"I think I needed a rest," he said. "I'm not going back to Northeastern for a while."

Johnson said the searchers were close to him on several occasions but he was able to elude and cover before they spotted him.

"I saw their flashlights at night," he related, "so I could tell which way to duck."

But finally he came to the realization he was causing anxiety at home, the war veteran said.

"So I went out on a road and thumbed a ride. The man who stopped his car took me to a farm house and gave me some food."

Johnson was picked up on route 140 in Mendon, 15 miles from his home, by Chester C. Shattuck of Mendon, who said he asked to be taken to a telephone.

"I'll never do it again," the adventurer said.

Memorial Day Will Be Sunny

6th Delay Given In Shooting Trial

For the sixth time since April 29, the trial of Dominic Ciambelli, 31, alias "Red Hogan," was continued in municipal court today when it was disclosed the star witness to a Back Bay shooting was mysteriously missing. A hearing on June 7 was set.

The missing witness is Richard Krakeur, 38, a New York theatrical man, who was at Huntington ave. and Exeter st. a month ago when Jacob Cutler of Chelsea, a fight manager, was shot in the stomach. Ciambelli is charged with assault with intent to murder.

Malden Man's Body in River, $3900 Missing

Believed the victim of a $3900 robbery-murder, the body of a 73-year-old retired railroad man was found floating in the Malden river in Medford today. Police said the body was that of Charles Norton, of the Fellsway, Malden, missing since Dec. 28.

The elderly man was last seen alive that night in a Medford at Malden, cafe, in the company of two servicemen. His landlady, Mrs. Leo McCarthy, who reported his disappearance the following day, told police Norton had just sold some property he owned in Melrose and had $3900 in cash on his person.

The victim's badly decomposed body was spotted by Boston and Maine railroad track workers who notified Medford police. Norton, who wore a left wooden leg as the result of an accident several years ago, was identified by this and through his clothing. Detectives said there was no money in his pockets.

Norton, a former Melrose resident and a retired Boston & Maine railroad employe, was the object of a widespread search for several days after he disappeared. Police, however, were unable to trace his whereabouts after he was seen leaving the Medford at cafe, with two men in Army uniforms.

Police expressed belief he had been beaten and robbed and his body thrown into the river. Medical Examiner George S. Myles will perform an autopsy.

Fun Is Fun, but This No Fun

VICTORIA, B. C., May 29 (AP)—For three months unwanted taxicabs have been arriving at Mrs. J. E. Gort's door, hundreds of prospects have called to look at apartments she didn't advertise, and stores and florists have sent her things she didn't order.

All of which, she complained to police, has brought her to a bad state of nerves and has made her mother violently ill.

The police haven't a clue, except that the voice which calls the cabs and newspapers and florists and stores and piano tuners is the high-pitched voice of a woman.

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—Sen. Radcliffe (D.) of Maryland, told reporters after a White House visit today that a Maritime strike will not prevent operation of the nation's Merchant shipping.

Radcliffe, chairman of a Senate Merchant Marine subcommittee, was asked who would run the ships if a strike goes into effect June 15, as scheduled.

"The ships are going to run—you can bet on that," Radcliffe said.

Asked if the government would take them over, he said: "Somebody's going to run them."

U. S. Strike Turmoil Aids Reds in Europe

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Dean of American Foreign Correspondents
Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers

LONDON, May 29—America's prestige abroad has suffered another severe blow and her none too strong foreign policy and world leadership role have been further weakened as a result of the nationwide railway strike.

All Europe is amazed over reports of nationwide economic paralysis and alleged chaos in the United States in consequence of the rail strike and its dovetailing miners' walkout.

There is no gloating but, on the contrary, much deploring of the situation, especially in western Europe, as it is feared conditions in the United States will divert the attention of the American people from Europe.

The view is held that it will weaken American influence in European councils still more, and contribute toward clearing the field for Russia in Europe and Asia.

Europeans, unfamiliar with the American governmental system and how it works, say they do not understand President Truman's belated energy for suppressing and outlawing strikes, instead of having prevented national paralysis long ago by similar steps.

In some quarters our situation is interpreted as revealing leadership within America as being as weak and hesitant as has been America's postwar leadership abroad.

While fear of Communist Russia—with its forced unity, its far-staked goals, and the iron resolve of statesmanship and diplomacy skilfully carried out—is steadily growing, faith and confidence in America has again been shaken, first by the failure of the Paris peace conference, and now by the great strike.

Britain is much preoccupied with home and empire affairs, giving Russia an almost free field.

There is concern lest the situation in America influence the French and Italian elections, scheduled for Sunday. The question is asked:

"How can America pretend to assume a leading role in world peacemaking when her national administration apparently cannot maintain even labor and economic peace within her own borders?"

That America, too, has drifted into the whirlpool of economic paralysis is regarded as just another strategic advantage for Soviet Russia and Communism.

Haddock Prices Drop As Catches Increase

Four trawlers and three draggers arrived today with a total haul of 565,000 pounds of fish, most of it haddock which sold at 7½ cents a pound. Haddock brought in yesterday by the first trawler to bring in a catch since the end of the 144-day tieup sold at 11 cents.

Vessel owners conceded today's drop will be the forerunner of others as the trawler and dragger fleets continue to bring in big catches.

Plans Nearly Completed For Saturday's Pet Show

Details of the entertainment program which will augment next Saturday's annual pet show of the Boston Park Dept. are almost completed, and the full program will be announced in the Boston Daily Record and Evening American.

Everything else in connection with the big show on the baseball field of Boston Common is all set, and Saturday promises to be a gala day, not only for the more than 500 boys and girls who will try, through their pets, to win one of the 15 beautiful Badman's Territory ponies, but also for adult spectators.

The only circumstance that can throw present plans out of gear is bad weather. Inclement weather will delay the show one week, to Saturday, June 8.

RKO Radio Pictures, which has promised the 15 ponies to be awarded as prizes in eight judging classes, is also offering the entertainment program, to be headed by three real cowboys and rodeo riders—Roy Danner, Charlie Colbert and Lloyd (Buffalo) Owens.

The ponies are being given away by RKO Radio Pictures in marking the New England premiere of their newest and fast-moving film,

Hay fever sufferers taking this treatment have, with few exceptions, gone for years without recurring symptoms.

Proof!

For more than 300 hay fever patients, one season's treatments brought relief (lasting in some instances as long as ten years) to all but 18. Even those severe cases requiring additional treatments during a second season, experienced complete relief from hay fever symptoms during the first year.

Super Oxygen and Negative Ions oxygenate the blood stream and eliminate the acid (histamin) which is claimed to be the cause of hay fever. Treatments are moderately priced, pleasantly relaxing, and given under a doctor's direction.

On this Memorial Day, we pay tribute to our war dead. Names engraved deep in the hearts of families and friends—names like yours and your neighbor's—names that bring to mind every nation around the globe. It is for us, the living, to remember that for which they died—a way of life rich because of its four freedoms—freedom from fear, freedom from want, freedom of speech and freedom of worship.

In memory of these brave men, we, of A&P Food Stores, including 18,719 veterans already returned, bow our heads in silent meditation.

Dr. I. Q. Quiz Set for Met

First in the new series of Dr. I. Q. quiz programs is to be broadcast from the Metropolitan Theater stage beginning Monday.

Lew Valentine, the "Mental Banker," and Allen C. Anthony, will be starred in the Met stage-originating coast-to-coast network show for the next seven Monday nights, from 10:30 to 11. Announcers moving throughout the theater will select contestants, whose correct answers will win for them shiny, new silver dollars.

John C. Wilson's "Bloomer Girl," now playing at the Shubert, will give a holiday matinee tomorrow in lieu of the usual mid-week matinee today. The regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee schedule will be resumed next week. The local engagement will definitely terminate with the Saturday performance, June 15.

TURTLE IN 23D WEEK
 "The Voice of the Turtle," now in its 23d week at the Plymouth, is the undisputed long-run champion of this generation of Hub playgoers. As of this week, it has snatched the endurance en-

Wild Water—Flood waters from Turtle Creek cover the Electric property in East Pittsburgh, Pa., and playes parked in the concern's lot are nearly out of sight in the swirling overflowed its banks after a heavy three-day rainstorm.

Boat Aids

In the flooded city of Sunbury, Pa., a rowboat is used to carry a nurse to her station in a marooned hospital over the city's main thoroughfare—Market st.—inundated by the swollen waters of the Susquehanna river. Residents are now awaiting the crest of the flood.

REMEMBRANCE IS BLESSED

THE NATIONAL DAY of remembrance annually observed by the American people is a lovely and restful custom, marked by the placing of flowers upon ground hallowed by those who sleep there and by recollection of cherished and treasured days.

Remembrance is a blessed thing, gentle and sweet, charitable and forgiving.

It gives us the power to make those things live on and on which are beloved.

It enables us to see back across the span of the rushing years, with eyes of memory which are not dimmed by time or tears.

Remembrance is a beautiful thing, in the manner in which it screens out the bitterness which has been in our lives and lets it be forgotten, and preserves that in which we have had pleasure and been worthily and fruitfully enriched.

Memory reflects, as in a magic mirror of the soul, that which has given us happiness, and is mercifully dark upon regrets and tragedy.

THE MIRACLE OF MEMORY is in the kindness and tolerance and tender prejudice with which it endows the remembered thing with virtue and casts out the faults and shortcomings and failings.

There is peace in our memories, and a great strength.

They speak in the familiar voices of our loved ones, and have the sound of their laughter.

They have the whisper of music and the scent of flowers, the solemnity of wisdom and the nobility of justice and the grand virtues of patience and sympathy.

Memories crowd upon us, not to accuse or challenge, but to instruct and inspire.

It is the smile of the loved one that is remembered, not his fault or his pain.

Remembrance is not the historian of life, but the preserver of its goodness.

MEMORY IS NOT THE CRUEL recorder of grief and discouragement, but the giving of permanence to the moments of love and happiness we have known.

Memorial Day is not an occasion for looking back to sorrow, but for its asseguement.

It is an occasion for taking profit from our yesterdays, that we may have a courageous spirit for the tasks of our to-morrows.

It gives us the sense and realization of the eternal companionship of those we love and respect and remember, and delivers us from the haunting spectre of being alone.

The American Memorial Day gives us a glimpse of the immortality of mankind, and brings us peace and permits us to join hands with the dear ones of happy past association and walk on with refreshed and restful hearts.

TOO MUCH TALK

MR. JOHN CARROLL, chairman of the Boston Housing Authority, has announced that priorities on building materials have been obtained for a housing development of 973 units to be constructed on Broadway, South Boston.

Mr. Carroll has also stated that preference in the rental of the apartments will be given to veterans and families with children.

What about the Cathedral Housing Project which the veterans need and want? Why isn't it being built?

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DELAY?

There has been too much talk and too little action and a great deal too much obstruction in Massachusetts housing.

It is time we declared a moratorium on ruinous procrastination and gave the veterans something more tangible than hot air and blueprints.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS:
Q—My home town is Nashua, N. H. Ever been there? A—Certainly, I have also been to Manchester, N. H. On one trip to latter town, played a football game against New Hampshire State College. We won, but it was a moral victory for New Hampshire.

Greta Garbo
shire; they scored on us. I have also been to Berlin, N. H. Bretton Woods, N. H., Salem, N. H. (Rockingham Park) and Bethlehem, N. H. Not only that, I know the words and tune of the song, "Ain't You Comin' Back to Old New Hampshire, Molly?" Q—Can't you do something about persuading Greta Garbo to return to the screen? I would like to see her play in the Life of Sarah Bernhardt. A—Greta is in New York. The next time I see her walking around the Central Park reservoir I'll start persuading her as you request. I hope she doesn't interrupt me by saying: "I want to go home, now." As for Greta as Bernhardt, that could be good. The part calls for a great actress and Garbo is probably the best actress in Hollywood.

ONE of the greatest show dogs bred in America was Champion Gallant Fox of Wilcox, a Wire Fox Terrier. This dog was sold to an Englishman. On arriving in England the dog was by British law compelled to spend six months in quarantine. A few days after leaving quarantine Gallant Fox went to the Crystal Palace dog show, then the greatest of all dog shows, and won best dog in show. This wonderful dog went insane during the bombing of Coventry and had to be destroyed.

NASTY TRICK—Before the railroad strike, the head of one company was asked if it were possible any trains would be abandoned in the middle of a run. The official replied indignantly: "Certainly not. Our xmen are not as cheap that. They are not that kind of people." Nevertheless many trains were abandoned in the middle of runs and the passengers left stranded far from home. That was a nasty trick. Finishing out the runs would not have affected the strikers' stand.

MARRY FOR KEEPS—A San Franciscoan says she celebrated her silver wedding the same year her parents, also San Franciscoans, celebrated their golden wedding. Very interesting. Those San Francisco bachelors are hard to get, but once in matrimonial harness, they usually stay married for keeps. San Francisco probably has a higher percentage of golden weddings than any other city in the country.

SAYS SHE—"So you object to what you refer to as 'plump, fortyish females' speaking of 'hankies' and 'panties' on the ground it is not fitting for women of their age and figures to use such babyish language," writes a Seattle subscriber. "I suppose it is all right for a fortyish female who is not plump to speak of her 'hankie' and perfectly proper for a thirtyish woman, even if she is plump, to use the term 'panties.' As a plump, fortyish female I am prepared to abandon the term 'hankie' and will speak only of my handkerchief. But how about the other article? What is the 'nonbabyish' term for it? 'Pants' seems rather inappropriate. This phase of the situation is not only baffling me but several other plump, fortyish females of Seattle interested in maintaining the proper dignity of expression for those of their age and shape."

LONG ENGAGEMENT—What is the world's record for a long engagement? Fifty-three-year-old Beatrice Cranmore of Birmingham, England, recently married 46-year-old George Taylor. Beatrice and George had been engaged to marry for 21 years.

PASSING BY—Ethel Merman. The stenographer from Astoria, Long Island, who became the country's greatest musical show comedienne. Ethel, now wowing the critics, is playing Annie Oakley in the smash hit "Annie, Get Your Gun," began her stage career in vaudeville with Clayton Jackson and Durante. Made her first musical show hit 16 years ago in "Girl Crazy." That was the show in which Ethel sang "I've Got Rhythm."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT'S recent expression of sympathy for the striking coal miners, with particular reference to their bleak social condition, is another example of that remarkable inconsistency which ran through the story of her husband's political life and still amazes observers of her own career.

That two persons whose professed principles contrast so sharply with their practices could enjoy the confidence, even the adulation, of millions of those toilers who are least favored by fortune, as the good life is understood by the Fascist wing of the Democratic party, is a paradox beyond present understanding.

It is only a slight exaggeration, if any, to say that Roosevelt was regarded as a god by millions so prideless that they were pleased to be called the common man and no exaggeration at all to say that these and many others thought him generous and above greed.

Here we have today a woman in politics and a member, though ineligible, of a subsidiary of the CIO, constantly patronizing the down-trodden and respectfully reckoned by the opposition as a dangerous electioneer while, in the accumulating file of hard-won information, there is proof that her late husband was, in the most conservative language, a very practical man in his own business affairs.

We find Mrs. Roosevelt now solicitous for the miners, though not exactly affectionate toward Mr. Lewis, who runs their union, and are reminded of the coal properties in Pennsylvania owned and operated by the Delanos and Roosevelts for half a century, where, as recently as 1940, the closing of the mines and the company store left most of the inhabitants of the company town of Vintondale destitute and with little food. The company just closed down with the miners clamoring for their pay and their families for bread.

Mrs. Roosevelt also mentioned a slight awareness of miners' troubles during the First World War when, on the word of an authority close to the United Mine Workers, armed guards patrolled the company's streets and the property paid dividends of more than 100 per cent. Among the troubles in the mines during 1914, my informant in the UMW recalls a strike at the Delano-Roosevelt property which lasted seven months and was beaten by the company, as others were in 1916, 1919 and 1922.

That Franklin D. Roosevelt was for a time one of the owners of the mines we have the word of Mrs. Roosevelt, herself, in a letter from the White House in 1942, but a gap in our information leaves us in doubt as to whether he shared in the great profits of the first war boom.

Of course, it is true that the mines were unionized in 1933, shortly after Roosevelt's first inauguration.

Nor should we forget that in return for the patronage and benefits conferred by the Roosevelt government during that first term the party received from John L. Lewis for its 1936 campaign one of the greatest single gifts of slush in our political history.

It has been reported lately that Miss Grace Tully, one of the secretaries of the late President, is carefully preparing for historical information a large collection of his papers. Now, if these be revealed in the naive simplicity of George Washington's accounts, they should show exactly how much he paid farmhands and common laborers on his baronial estate at Hyde Park. In which case, again assuming complete candor and no editing, it would appear that he was not merely practical but objective in his own dealings with the common man, and not merely thrifty but mean.

We know, from his will, that he limited to $1000 a year, or less than $20 a week, the bequest for the assistance of his loyal secretary of many years' service, Miss Marguerite Leland, ill beyond hope of recovery, whose death spared her the problems of survival on this pittance. And we know that his appreciation of faithful service by personal employees was expressed in bequests of $100 each.

Mrs. Roosevelt, of course, was not the head of the family, but the nation and, indeed, the world, were given to understand that she was not reticent and was influential. Yet we find Mrs. Roosevelt robustly active in the affairs of the CIO and all its propaganda for the underpaid and underprivileged, and asserting her own liberal principles on the very day that a news dispatch reports that a young woman, her clerk and secretary, killed in an automobile wreck, was contributing to her mother's support on a salary of $25 a week, the same amount that President Truman deemed the minimum dole for dislocated war workers.

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, May 29—With Clark Gable still holding out against $200,000 worth of "The Hucksters," MGM comes up with another offering, "Day Before Yesterday," for the crown prince's approval. This English novel by Edward Holstius, purchased from galley proofs in London, brought $125,000 in good American dollars, and because such big figures dazzle me I hope they took the precaution of showing it to Gable before making the cash jump.

"Although 'Day Before Yesterday' is a British novel, one-half of it is set in Los Angeles. It's about a man who gets rich operating a racket in southern California, then gets the urge to forget his past and live like a gentleman in London. American publishers of the novel are Doubleday Doran.

"THE FABULOUS DORSEYS," the saga of Tommy and Jimmy, rolls steadily along to ward a starting date. The girl most likely to succeed as the love interest in the life story of the swing kings is Janet Blair. And good she would be since she began her career singing with bands—Hal Kemp's among them. The actor who wants to play the romantic lead opposite Janet is Lee Bowman. He's been angling for a chance to sing for a long time. A. I. Green is set to direct from the original Dorsey biography by Richard English which appeared in a national magazine last year.

Oleg Cassini, who designs such sumptuous clothes he shouldn't be identified as Gene Tenney's husband, moves in as chief designer in charge of clothes glamor for the new Eagle-Lion company. Byrnie Foy signed the contract with Cassini before taking off, by motor, for New York. Cautious, isn't he? Maybe he wasn't convinced the railroad strike is over. Cassini will be quartered in the luxurious bungalow which is being redecorated for his arrival June 19. His latest designing job is Gene's wardrobe for "The Razor's Edge."

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Rita Hayworth and Tony Martin who chilled when he went to Chicago and she started stepping out with Jimmy Stewart, were a surprise wosome again at the Seacombers—a clubby little beach cafe, Rita, in slacks, and Tony in a loud checked sports coat, seemed definitely on the happy side. He never tried very hard to hide the fact that any little misunderstanding he and Rita may have had, was a jolt. Tony and Rita strike me as a good romantic team—they're both young, handsome, musical and inclined to be on the lonely side.

Gene Kelly's younger brother, Fred, is testing at RKO and the girl who is doing the dance routines with him is Constance Donahue, daughter of the late, great Jack Donahue. If these relatives are anything like the originals, Hollywood can use them. A fact RKO is fully aware of because the studio is already scouting for a co-starring musical. Fred has on several occasions taken over Gene's roles in Broadway shows and is the current dance director for the "Ice-Capades."

JOHN STEINBECK wires: "Wizard of Maine" very much alive and in process. Only change is that I myself am not writing dialogue. Can you correct impression that the production is abandoned? Yes, sir; Charles Vidor directs "My Empty Heart" with Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas at Columbia; some of Hollywood's top names are eyeing bids from the Summer Garden Theater—12 weeks of top productions at an outdoor spot near Kansas City. The dough is top, too; Bob Hutton and June Haver together again holding hands at La Rue; Mrs. Ben Blue so seriously ill at the Cedars of Lebanon that Ben has cancelled his tour and heads home immediately; the Paul Hennings, he's a writer on the Burns and Allen show, welcomed a boy Sunday morning. They have two little girls.

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS: Betty Hutton's headed east for three weeks; ditto Dorothy McGuire—but for a longer spell. She isn't interested in a no-tell movie she has had a long rest: Veronica Lake and Andre De Toth moved into their new valley home in one day—because Frank Loesser was due to take over their Beverly home the next; everything co-operated to make Mike Todd's outdoor party at Joe Schenck's house a success—everything but the weather. It was so cold even the big tent around the dance floor didn't keep the goose-flesh off such beautiful backs as Merle Oberon's, Joan Blondell's, and Dolores Moran's. Cutest thing floating around was Dorothy (Mrs. Joel) Easternak, in a beaded white dress with a pleated bustle. Spotted among the 200 were Sam Goldwyn (lonesome without Frances who is London-bound), Walter Winchell, the Mervyn Le Roy's, the Mark Gordons, Martin and Bill Seiter, Gracie and George Burns, Jack Warner, the Eddie Mannixes, Franchot Tone and Jean Wallace.

Washington Scene

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

WASHINGTON, May 29—V. Adm. Ben Moreell, who has taken over the job of running the seized coal mines for the government, is a hard-hitting, square-jawed fellow, who will try to make the best of an extremely thankless job. But, in his moments of relaxation he is a great deadpan ribber, equipped with a distinctly pixie sense of humor. One time his kidding almost caused international complications.

Adm. Moreell

The new coal administrator had a hard time explaining himself out of it. This is what happened:

A sensational story, quoting Adm. Moreell as the authority, came flashing over the wires. It reported the bizarre disappearance of three American sailors who had been loaned to a Russian ship which had put into an Alaskan port for repairs. The ship then sailed away with the sailors—who have never been heard from since.

But the part of the story that was so hair-raising—and also intriguing—was this:

The Russian ship was manned entirely by women!

Well, you should have heard the yelps here in Washington. The Soviet embassy belched howls of indignation, the gist of which was that Russian women didn't have to shanghai American sailors to get men.

Indignant representations were made to the State Department, which quickly heaved the thing into the lap of Sec. of the Navy

Forrestal. The latter ordered a sweeping investigation.

V. Adm. Moreell was called in. Sheepishly he explained.

He had been at a cocktail party in Chicago at which a group of bigwigs began telling tall stories. Each was trying to outdo the others—and Adm. Moreell had just launched into his contribution when a newcomer horned in.

The latter, not having heard what had gone before, dashed out and broadcast it to the nation.

HERE'S ONE about the Russians, however, which is distinctly no tall story but the sober, if macabre, truth. In the Army and Navy Club recently I got into a huddle with Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, who was adjutant general throughout the war, and Col. Don E. Lowry, former White House military aide, now attached to the office of the combined chiefs of staff.

The two old warriors got talking about the strange things that had befallen them in the war. Col. Lowry said his weirdest experience had been at Potsdam.

He had gone there ahead of President Truman and the American delegation to set things up. The Russians, who control the area, said they had a beautiful headquarters for him in an old chateau at Babelsberg, which is between Potsdam and Greater Berlin.

Col. Lowry inspected the estate and found it everything that a place should be—a lovely place of old-world charm. "I was entranced by it," he said, "and I knew the President would like it too. But, when I went out to inspect the gardens I found a freshly-covered grave."

I inquired about this, whereupon the Russians laughed uproariously.

"Oh, one of them said, 'the lady who owned this place did not want to leave. So we fixed it so she could stay!'"

I HAVE BEEN DELUGED by letters on a column I wrote recently contending that able-bodied men who have been out of work for more than two months should be conscripted into a labor battalion to help alleviate the alarming labor shortage.

In the column I specifically excepted veterans in the process of reorienting themselves. Apparently quite a few did not read the piece very carefully because many of the dissenting letters were from veterans.

Nearly all took the same theme: that there may be jobs open but not good-paying jobs. They seemed to assume I meant that any man should be satisfied with a menial job.

I meant no such thing. It is the right—in fact the moral duty—of every man to get the best job he possibly can, so that his ability and training may be utilized to the fullest possible extent. And he certainly has a right to the most money he can command.

But he has no right to loaf, or go on public charity, just because he can't find a position to his taste right away. Rather than be supported by the other taxpayers—workers themselves—he should take what he can get temporarily and keep looking around for something better.

My piece was aimed primarily at a type which is probably more prevalent in Washington than elsewhere—men who were elevated to posts away beyond their capability by wartime emergency and who refuse to accept lesser jobs now that competent men have returned.

Boston After Dark

MAJORITY LEADER JOHN W. MCCORMACK might like to make inquiries in the Capital about the recent presence in the Russian port of Odessa of 11 United States merchant ships. . . . The cargoes consisted in large part of wheat and copper sulphate. . . . Many Americans would like to know whether we are still feeding via lend-lease or in any other phony fashion the 5,000,000 Russian soldiers charged with making the European world safe for Communism.

Fully three-fifths of the Soviet army are former farmers, and the Russian (Ukraine) breadbasket which was trampled under three harvests ago by the Nazi hordes could be made to supply more grain than America's famous wheat belt. . . . It could, that is, if there were farmers enough to work the land.

EXCLUSIVE: Two ranking city officials are going out in June. Another prospect for the axe should have his neck ready come time for his next hair cut.

J. ARTHUR WARNER—the New York young financier who moulded the Suffolk Downs deal—wears clothes like a movie star. . . . Boston's First Lady, Mrs. James M. Curley, helmed the tone of the Padlock Club's opening day hurly-burly by her serenity and charm and her talent for wearing beautiful clothes unobtrusively. . . . The Mayor himself flaunted an incipient tan and seamed the picture of health—discounting all those rumors. . . . And he caught a couple of winners, too, in the course of his very modest betting.

EXCLUSIVE: Roger Babson, the famous Wellesley financier who wears one long beard and two short ones (under his ears), has bought into the country's largest lobster business. . . . But Ray O'Connell, of Gloucester, founder of the business, is still the largest stockholder.

PEGGY FRENCH, the brunette Bernhardt in "The Vore of the Turtle," has not missed a performance in the 23 weeks of the Boston run. . . . If any gal deserved a respite from the arduous chores of this famous three-character comedy, it is the same Miss French. She has been working the past week in the clutch of La Grippe and with an advanced case of pharyngitis. . . . However, Peggy is confident of her youthful stamina. She has just signed a new contract for another year in the same opus.

THE SHANGRI-LA'S lemon chiffon pie is delicious, and their dessert specialty—strawberry or chocolate parlais—rival the Ritz-Carlton's. . . . The northeastern devastated nightclub and restaurant business. Today's predicted switch to westerly winds will be very welcome. . . . medicos are leaning with increasing weight to the theory that "sinus trouble" is caused by allergies. (Some experienced doctors say as many as 90 per cent of the cases are produced by the human system's flare-up against irritants). . . . A cosmetics firm is making loads of money by going along with the doctors who have proved beyond scientific doubt that some powder and lipstick bases, as well as soap, contribute to sinus and asthma. . . . This firm manufactures "non-allergy" products and has a ready-made market among the fair sex who have been tested for allergies and told that their cosmetics or soap are to blame.

CHATTER: Miss Lili Stone, former entertainer who made good as a model, is showing a "squared-circle" ring which New York has grasped as the new style in costume jewelry. . . . The ring (gold) is an exact copy of an ordinary nut without threads. . . . It is square in shape and has an inner circumference which fits the finger.

Broadway

NEW YORK, May 29—Sometimes I wonder if a farmer toiling in his field ever looks up from his plow and beyond the horizon of his golden acres and wonders a little about the people who work at night. I suppose not; no reason why he should. He has the rain to wonder about, and the sun and the soil and the plans of God. There is no reason why he should suddenly pause in the sweat of an afternoon and think, "I wonder what they're doing at Toots Shor's night now."

Because those are the people I mean when I say the people who work at night. Not the truckman who drives by night or the black highway patrol engineer pulling the flir under the stars, not the milkman rattling behind his dobbie, not the nurse at the white bedside near the bare-armed stoker at a ship's boilers. These people work at jobs with dignity and sense and there is no need to wonder about them. I mean the people with the strange jobs that a farmer would laugh at.

The actors. The prize fighters. (They work at night, did you ever think of that? They train in the daytime, but their big moments are always at night in smoky places.) The night club singers. The night club owners. The people who stay up late to make other people stay up late. The farmer would wonder what they all did. And why should he?

I was thinking of this the other afternoon when crazy rain slashed down in criss-cross glees on W. 51st st. and the riveted gutters gurgled a foolish song and the people who never look at clocks in the daytime found warm sanctuary from the dreary afternoon in Toots' pine-paneled tavern. They were neatly dressed with collared shirts and wild ties and even the burly broad-shouldered, tough-looking ones excited sent that would frighten a farmer.

Toots, energetic bellowed of the malaprop, sat among them beaming.

"Hey, creep," he called across to Rocky Graziano the prize fighter. "Eat plenty of that meat—you'll need it. That Tony Zale ain't no setup, you bum. His right arm is a foot longer than his left because his fist is so heavy. Eat hearty!" Then in an aside to Phil Berger, the singer, he whispered: "That's my boy, that Rocky. What a puncher!"

And thus do watercracks say the grace for the beginning of a night on Broadway.

Planning Picnic Day

By MARTHA LEE
Household Editor

IT IS A TIME-HONORED custom in this country to make Decoration Day a picnic day, and this peacetime year will see many motorists, free of ration restrictions, bound for country and seashore picnic spots.

Sandwiches and picnics are practically synonymous, but this summer, traditional outdoor eating will have to undergo readjustments in order to fit in with the bread conservation program.

SANDWICH SPREAD

While picnic planners gleefully count the time saved by not making sandwiches at home, they shouldn't forget to plan the bread spreads carefully so that no favorite is overlooked. Onto the shopping list go a couple of savory items such as tangy cheese and prepared deviled ham. To balance these, several sweet spreads can also be picked right from the grocer's shelves. Plum jam, orange marmalade, current jelly and peanut butter are a quartet very much in tune with outdoor tastes. Peanut butter and jelly or jam, sandwiches always get the vote of picnickers, to say nothing of butter conservers.

CHICKEN SALAD

2 cups cooked chicken, cut in pieces

Salt, pepper and thyme

½ cup dry white table wine

1 tsp. lemon juice

1½ cups celery, chopped

½ cup walnut meats

½ cup boiled salad dressing

Season chicken with salt, pepper and thyme. Transfer to shallow refrigerator dish. Pour wine and lemon juice over chicken. Cover and allow to stand in wine marinade for 3 or 4 hours. Remove chicken from marinade. Combine chicken, celery and nut meats. Add small amounts of leftover wine marinade to boiled dressing and beat with rotary beater. Continue to add wine to dressing until dressing is the consistency of rather thick cream. Toss dressing through salad. Carry salad and lettuce in separate containers, and when serving arrange salad in lettuce cups. Garnish with tomatoes and carrot sticks.

MERINGUE SPICE BARS

1½ cups sifted enriched flour

½ tsp. baking powder

½ tsp. soda

½ tsp. salt

½ tsp. cinnamon

½ tsp. cloves

½ cup shortening

½ cup brown sugar

1 egg yolk

½ tsp. vanilla extract

¾ cup sour milk or buttermilk

Topping:

1 egg white

½ cup brown sugar

½ cup chopped nuts

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and spices. Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolk and vanilla extract and beat well. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Spread in greased 7x11 inch pan. Beat egg white until stiff. Add brown sugar gradually and mix well. Spread on batter. Sprinkle with nuts. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 30 minutes. When cool, cut into bars. The pan may be carried with the other lunch materials to the picnic ground, and the cake cut into bars there. This simplifies packing. Makes 22 bars, 1x3½ inches.

New Homogenized Leg Makeup

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

NOW WE'VE HEARD EVERYTHING. There's homogenized milk... we've been drinking it for years. Now's there a new homogenized leg makeup... a "first" in its field that is so much improved over the old formula that even cosmetic buyers are excited. And that's something... caught up in the whirl of a million and one cosmetic items as they are.

This new homogenized leg makeup is an emulsified preparation containing soy bean oil... a skin-softening agent which frees the skin from dryness and aids in color adherence. And the "blemished" look need never happen if you carefully follow the instructions on the bottle.

This summer most things are BARE... bare brows, bare necklines, bare-backs, bare arms and bare legs. Freedom from clothes restraint is the fashion keynote... and we dare say most girls will take striking and stunning advantage of the allowance... or as far as convention permits. And somehow it seems right... this bareness... when the sun's rays soars to almost insufferable heights.

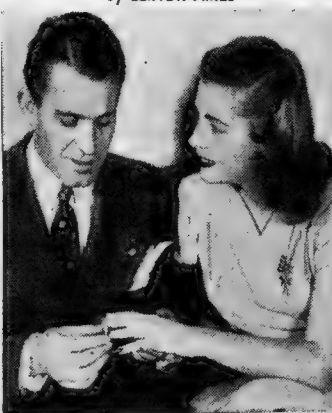

But to get back to this startling new leg makeup. Thanks to this new homogenizing process... the color neither cakes nor "breaks" at the knees... nor will it fade or streak when rain splatters it. And these nature's nylons come in two lush shades... tan; for a quiet beige tone... and sun-tan to produce a warm dusky shade so charming with those Bermuda-inspired pastels. The depth of color is in your hands... or really on your legs.

A modern depilatory which literally erases hair off the legs and conditions the skin at the same time is one of the cosmetic wonders of the ages. A rosy disc which is circled a few times to the right and then to the left smooths the hair away as easily as soap and water removes dirt from a child's hand. 'Tis grand! This and the new homogenized leg makeup can be your summer season's guarantee of perfection. Hair-free legs for beach cavorting... hair-free legs plus this emulsified makeup for after-dark glance inmaking.

And for the name of this summertime dust for leg beauty, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day except Sunday, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE ENGAGEMENT RING — The engagement ring is always given in private!

A LEGACY to the fair of limb is a new homogenized leg makeup that contains a skin-softening agent which frees the skin from dryness and aids in color adherence. And a modern depilatory bequeaths skin-conditioned and hair-free gambs. Together they are beauty's assurance that your beach draping and after-dark insinuation will be dramatic and devastating.

For Hot Summer Use

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE EFFECT of color in hot summer weather is tremendous. Some colors make your temperature go up when you look at them. Other make you feel fresh and cooler.

So the choice of color is a mighty important thing, particularly at this time of year! Everybody knows, if they stop to think about it, that clear, frosty white is one of the coolest shades in hot weather. It has its drawbacks in that it is hard to keep looking perfectly fresh.

For this reason the way good designers add tiny white wraps to a summer outfit is the answer. A little white capelet or jacket do wonders—a white hat and gloves likewise. Miss Dulin has sketched Zoe de Salle's smart white jacket for an example. It is a brief one, with wide, cool sleeves, and piped in black. It goes over a black crepe dress with a baroque belt.

NOTES FROM A SOCIETY EDITOR'S CUFF

One of the loveliest affairs in early June for the girls who will be next season's debutantes will be the garden party Mrs. George Bigelow Dabney is giving on the 8th for her daughter Fay at her summer estate, "Old Tannery Farm," Medfield.

Glimpsed debutante Alva Hood squirmed by Dix Leeson of Honolulu, dining and dancing at Ten Acres in Wayland, and sipping at the same rendezvous were debs Sada Paine and Frances Walker in a foursome with N. Rust Cutler and David P. Johnson.

Wheelock College Alumnae held their 54th spring luncheon Saturday in the college gardens in Brookline. Spring flowers, bright umbrellas and a bevy of attractive hostesses will make this a pleasant affair. Hostesses will include Beatrice Bridges, Mrs. George L. Connor, Barbara Hopkins, Mrs. Alfred A. Cullette, Laura E. Holmes, Mrs. S. Young Tyree, Mrs. Joseph Casalis, Mrs. Earle Kimball, Mrs. Henry M. Perry and Mrs. Ralph G. Watson. Mrs. Elston F. Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. MCENANEY

Q—If a man served several years in the National Guard, would that time be credited with the time he has served in the regular Army in computing retirement benefits? F. J. Manchester.

A—Only the time served in the National Guard when the guard was federalized; that is, mustered into federal service—may be counted in computing length of service for purposes of retiring from regular Army.

Q—I want to buy some homing pigeons which the Army may declare to be surplus. Where should I write about this matter? S. N. B. Wayland.

A—Write Chief Signal Officer, War Dept., Wash. 25, D. C.

Q—May a wife, widow, child, or other dependent of a veteran be granted hospital or domiciliary care by the Veterans Administration by reason of the relationship of such a person to the veteran? R. H. Augusta, Me.

A—No. Admission to a Veterans Administration facility, based upon the service of a person in the armed forces, may be granted only to the person who served.

Q—I understand the government has extended National Service Life Insurance from a five-year term plan for three more years. Is the premium to be charged increased for the additional time extension? J. D. Groton, Mass.

A—No extra premium is imposed for this insurance coverage. However, this privilege is only granted to servicemen entering service prior to Dec. 31, 1915.

Q—I named my mother beneficiary when I went into service in 1942. In 1945 I married a girl in England. Do I have to change the beneficiary to my wife or is it done automatically? D. D. Hartford, Ct.

A—If your mother is living, she is still the principal beneficiary and in the event of your death the claim would be payable to her.

Boston American, May 29—*9

It is recommended that you... the nearest Veterans Administration Office and complete VA Form No. 316 making any change in beneficiary you desire. Also, name a second or contingent beneficiary in the event of the prior death of the principal beneficiary.

Sylvania Agent Pleads Guilty

Retracting his plea of innocence at the start of the second day of testimony before Federal Judge Charles E. Wyzanski, Jr., and a jury, Joseph P. Bartley of Methuen, former assistant purchasing agent at the Danvers Special Products Plant of the Sylvania Electric Products Inc., today pleaded guilty to fraud against the government and conspiracy.

Two other defendants pleaded guilty to the same charges at the start of the trial. They are George R. Mulcahy of Peabody, formerly an expediter at the Danvers plant, and Harold G. O'Brien of Lewiston, Me., who conducted a machine and business there. They admitted defrauding the government of $35,000 by overcharges and false invoices.

Atty. William H. Clifford told the court that O'Brien had made restitution of $53,000 and Mulcahy had paid back $1500. Judge Wyzanski continued the cases of all three to June 11 for disposition.

Democracy vs. Coercion: Or, Two Little Words

By AUSTEN LAKE

WITH THE KIND PERMISSION of John L. Lewis, Philip Murray, William Green and A. F. Whitney today's sermon deals with the true, unexpurgated meaning of DEMOCRACY, one little word which some of our statesmen and deep-left unionists, use as a screen for monopolistic ambitions.

Austen Lake

DEMOCRACY is the most used and abused noun in the national lexicon! When Americans were told that we fought to save Democracy against the barbarian assaults of Fascist autocracy, it whipped our nation into a patriotic froth. It sounded fine! We went at it with both

But nobody bothered to define the exact meaning of Democracy and Fascism, except to regard the former as something very splendid and the latter as very vile. So, at the risk of seeming a deadly bore, I will give you one man's notion of both. And if Messrs. Lewis, Murray, Green and Whitney disagree with me that is their Democratic privilege.

Majority Rule!

I PRESUME THAT THE TRUE principle of democracy has not changed since I learned my penmanship in the little red schoolhouse at Pottsville, Pa., which was "the greatest good for the largest number," with popular government to that end. Do Messrs. Lewis, Murray and Whitney agree with that aphorism?

And, as we learned our last painful lesson from the late European Axis, Fascism was: "The use of coercive force by an activist minority upon an unwilling and defenseless majority." Do you agree that the pre-war minority gangs of Hitler, Mussolini and Franco fit that definition? I think you do! And will you concede that the two definitions are diametrically opposed?

You must recall how these rabid, activist minorities of Italy, Germany and Spain infiltrated into government; first appearing as innocent political and social groups with popular slogans of appeal. They didn't look dangerous! They preached the gospel of ultra-democracy! But once they were installed in power they stripped off the mask of benevolence and used fear and force as their weapons. Honest speech expired! Free enterprise, individualism and initiative became captive to the greeds of self-willed cliques! The dismayed masses found it was too late! Democracy was dead! Fascism was midwived!

We Americans know that now—at the cost of a quarter million dead, 750,000 wounded and 200 billions of dollars. It cost us heavily to find that Fascism works like a microbe through a small cut in the social skin. We watched it spread from a minor surface sore to a creeping paralysis until it ended in democracy's palsy. Well didn't it?

It was the germ of political polio which attacked nations already weakened by industrial and social excess until the will to resist was gone. So the minority microbe infected, multiplied and paralyzed the entire system. But we Americans like to believe ourselves invulnerable to Europe's social disorders. We like to think "it can't happen to us." But our nation is at a low tide of resistance, too, after years of exhausting war, political excesses and social experiment. We, too, find ourselves in a mood to compromise with radical minorities, as did that great pre-war conciliator, England's Neville Chamberlain. That is the futile philosophy of "Peace in our time." Fascism relied on democratic torpor and timidity!

America, too, has its coercive minorities, pressure groups already inflicting selfish interest on an inebriate, defenseless majority. Strikes against the nation against the government, and Yes! against the interest of all unionism, at a time when America is struggling to gain a foothold on the beaches of industrial conversion, are NOT for "the greatest good of the largest number."

Strikes Against Unions

THE THREAT IS NOT ALONE to our markets, national security and health. It is against the vast, temperate majority of unionized America, the microbe of first infection which leads to national paralysis and the social polio called an "economy of starvation." That means the gradual dwindling of the red corpuscles called "private savings," the drying (issues called "essential goods," and the swelling infection of "depreciated currency" and the final collapse of work opportunity. Its labor's disease as well as anybody's.

The President asks for a period of healthy postwar convalescence between labor, management and politics which will lead to an "economy of plenty." He hopes to restore the bloodstream of "fluid wealth," the muscle building of "productive volume" and the digestive process of "consumer capacity."

Then America will be ready and eager to share its profits with ALL workers, including the majority of its citizens which is not, and cannot be, unionized. That is to create higher living standards for EVERYBODY. That's the "greatest good for the largest number!" Well, isn't it?

This pillar of crackerbarrel philosophy receives many letters from union activists which simmer down to a central theme. "We are striking for the same thing our soldiers fought for—the democratic right to security and wider opportunities of life." That's a half-truth and therefore twice as dangerous.

Ask our soldiers and they'll say, "We fought to oblige peoples of the earth to settle their quarrels by peaceful arbitration and mutual concessions in conference instead of by violence and coercive force."

Leaders like Lewis and Whitney struck first without sufficient appeal to reason. They launched what threatened to become a creeping paralysis with small attempts at concession or tolerance. They defied mediation by the President and forced his hand to the only control at his command. Meanwhile, the returned soldiers look hopefully for jobs and the rest of the nation for the Federal Doctors, who are having a clinical quarrel among themselves.

Does anything in this depict the difference between the two little words?

Chapman in Left Field Explained by Mr. Mack

By FRED HOEY

If you semi-pro managers think your star outfielder should be played in center (like Tris Speaker) talk to Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics whose team played a one-day stand with the Red Sox today, (Ferriss vs. Marchildon.)

"The center fielder doesn't throw men out at the plate," answered the septuagenarian to a question why Barney McCosky, late of Detroit, was in center, Sam Chapman in left.

McCosky can hit, run and field. Originally a second baseman, he turned to the outfield when his arm was injured. He doesn't throw well today. On the other hand, Chapman has an arm even the DiMaggios envy.

"The center fielder plays deep today," Mack went on. "Seldom does he figure in the scoring. But the left fielder, playing shorter, especially in Fenway's left field, can throw men out at the plate. That's why Sam Chapman's strong arm is in left field, McCosky's in center."

Dom DiMaggio was questioned on the subject. "I've made only two assists this year," he answered. That would seem to comply with Mack's reasoning, but Mack added: "If a center fielder can stop that man from going from first to third, or from second or third, that's all I ask." That's where DiMaggio shines. Mack is on top of the ball, old as he is. He's sharp as a needle. His shoe laces untied, but otherwise unexpectably dressed with high, hard collar, the A's only manager in history talked fluently.

"The Brotherhood League, yes, but why ask me about that when Hughie Duffy knows as much about it as I. I don't care to talk about unionism. I'd rather talk about East Brookfield (where he was born) and where Dorgan and Cohen (George) waxed merrily."

Mr. Mack went back to the old days. He talked of Joe Jackson and Nap Lajoie. He agreed that Jackson and Lajoie were great hitters. No, he wouldn't compare Williams with them.

"Williams is a different type hitter," Mack went on to explain, fencing the question cleverly.

But he did admit Hughson, Harris, Ferriss were "outstanding" pitchers, better than any one of his eight "good" pitchers. "You have hitting; we haven't," he said. "The race will finish just about as it stands now."

Mr. Mack was all enthused about Washington's Senators. "There's a team you've got to worry about," he said. "Good pitching and six left-handed hitters who can knock the ball out of the park." Ninety per cent of the Sox went to the track but Cronin stuck around the press room listening to the scribes' barbs. Cronin tucked in his chin, his tongue, and gave the best exhibition of Joe McCarthy possible. . . . So help me, sea-gulls were on Fenway's outfield as the chin-fest went on. . . . Pesky and Harris listened in.

Johnson Near Death

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—Walter Johnson, the Kansas farm boy who became the "Big Train" of American League right-handers, is critically ill from a brain tumor at Georgetown Hospital. A light stroke numbed the left arm and hand of the one-time strikeout king in early April.

Early yesterday, however, he lapsed into unconsciousness and members of his family were summoned.

Johnson broke into the majors with the Senators in 1907 and until 1927 he never pitched for any other team.

He managed Washington from 1929 to 1932 and Cleveland from 1932, to August, 1935, but without the success of his playing days. He was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., in 1936.

Johnson was born in Humboldt, Kan., and owned a home in Coffeyville. When he left baseball he bought a farm near Germantown, Mo.

In his 21 seasons with the Senators Johnson took part in 803 games, won 413—including 113 shutouts—and lost 280. Midway in his 14th season—July 1, 1920—he pitched a 1-to-0 no-hit game against Boston.

In 1924, when he was 36 years old and much of the whip was gone from his durable right arm, he still was good enough to win 23 games while losing seven. He came right back with a 20-7 record in 1925.

It was in 1924, after 18 seasons with a team which was a chronic

Nelson, Burton Duel B. C. Favored Over Holy Cross At Charles River

By BILL GRIMES

In a preview of the 5th Goodall Round Robin Invitational, Byron Nelson, the PGA British open champion, played the first round of their 36-hole international challenge match this afternoon at the Charles River Country Club.

It's been more than four years since a major golf attraction has been staged at Charles River. So today's classic drew a large throng despite the poor weather conditions.

Accompanied by Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the PGA, Frank Rostron, London Daily Express, and Clifford Hulme, London Daily Sketch, Nelson and Burton arrived at the Logan Airport late yesterday afternoon.

Instead of playing a practice round at "The River," Nelson and Burton went to the Ritz-Carlton for a press conference. Nelson hasn't hit a ball since last Sunday when he wound up his bid for the Western Open title, and Burton was on the high seas for 10 days. But, due to the inclement weather, Nelson and Burton decided to pass up practice rounds.

"One of the press releases stated that you had agreed to allow Burton to use the smaller ball," Nelson was asked by one of the scribes. "Will that give you an advantage?"

"I don't think so," replied Nelson. "Unquestionably, the smaller ball is longer off the tee and through the green but, unless the wind is blowing a gale, Burton will not be too far out in front of me."

Although he brought some of the 162 balls with him from England, Burton will play the 1.68 ball this afternoon and also during the Goodall Round Robin Invitational.

"I do not know right now whether I'll play in the United States Open Championship next month at Cleveland or not," declared Burton. "If I can get reservations which will get me back home in time for the British Open, I'll be at Canterbury. I'm going to play the American ball today and during the Goodall at Winged Foot."

"I've never played the larger ball," continued the Briton, "but they tell me that it has its advantages over the smaller one. I can understand that it sets up on the fairways and has more surface to stroke on the greens. As for hitting it into the wind, well, all I can say is that from my experience at Ridgewood back in 1935, the wind in this country isn't as strong as it is on the British Isles."

After dinner, Nelson and Burton retired to Ed Wyner's private golf net on the roof of the Ritz-Carlton. For more than an hour the two pros hit balls into the net and really got a good workout.

Chick Evans Eliminated

BIRKDALE, Eng., May 29 (AP)—Chick Evans, veteran Chicago golfer, was eliminated from the British amateur championship today on the 19th hole of his fourth-round match after the youthful Frank Stranahan of Toledo had turned in an easy triumph in his third-round match.

Evans took a par five on the extra hole while his opponent, Capt. Edward Browne of the Royal Armored Corps got a birdie 4 for the 450-yard hole. Stranahan, the only other American entrant, whipped Marshall Robertson, 5 and 4.

Jumpers, Hunters Likely To Hold Garden Spotlight

The Open Jumper and Hunter Division at the New England Horse Show appears destined to steal the spotlight at the Garden next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Not only do the Jumpers and Hunters provide a maximum of speed and action, but the grade of horse in the Garden event is the finest in the nation. The N. E. horse flesh stood up in a superior manner at the Milton Horse Show last week-end and gave the local followers of the well-bred horse a splendid idea of what will take place on the coming week-end.

Johnnie Cornell's big jumper, Charlie McCarthy, captured the 5 foot, high jump class and then went on to win the $500 Stake. The Weld Stock Farm entry from West Roxbury will rule a favorite to repeat at the Garden.

Terry Lad, owned by Bill Schlusener, Norfolk, was victorious in the Knock Down and Out Class, and was the best jumper in the show. Bert Bowen's fine Magic Luck won the Hunter Championship as most of his Waterbury, Ct., followers had predicted.

Magic Luck became the National title holder last season by amassing the most number of points throughout 1945. He will be ridden by Miss Ann Morningstar of Greenwich, Ct. All of these horses will compete at the Garden.

Topsfield Track Set for Trials

Recent rains have bedded down the Topsfield Fair Grounds race track nicely for the holiday program of big car races tomorrow afternoon when the Eastern Auto Racing Ass'n will conduct its first set of speed trials since the start of the war.

Time tests will get underway at 1 p. m. with the actual racing program to start at approximately 2:30 p. m.

Three New York drivers will be wheeling their cars to the starting line in an attempt to take over top honors from the New England favorites. This trio includes Ray Kilmer and Herb Shaw of Albany, and Eddie Gallione of Schenectady—a group that stood out in the recent opening tune-ups at Keene, N. H.

Guild Asks NLRB Okay in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, May 29 (AP)—The American Baseball Guild today petitioned the Pittsburgh regional office of the National Labor Relations Board for certification as collective bargaining agent for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The petition, first of its kind in the history of major league baseball, was filed by Robert Murphy of Boston, labor relations director of the guild.

Boston College's greatest baseball team in almost 20 years will invade Fitton Field tomorrow afternoon to tangle with their traditional rivals, Holy Cross, in the first of a two-game series, and will be seeking their first victory over the Crusaders since 1939.

Coach Fred Maguire, who since his first year at the Heights (1939) has been unable to best Jack Barry's perennial top-flight teams, feels confident that this is his year.

B. C. rates as favorite in the annual holiday fray between the rival Jesuit colleges. This will be the first meeting between B. C. and Holy Cross since 1943, when baseball was relegated to informality at the Heights.

This year Maguire has come up with a collection of veterans of the war, and they have been flying high. With a record of 10 wins and two defeats, the most recent being last Saturday to New Hampshire (4-2), B. C. is ruled to belt the Crusaders, who until recently have been having none too easy a time winning ball games. However, last Saturday they shut out Yale, 5 to 0, after the Elis had a record of eight straight wins.

The B. C. choice for the pitching duties will be Bob Quirk, sensational freshman right hander who has a record of three and one. His victories include decisions over Amherst, Harvard and Brown. In 27 innings, he allowed but 15 hits. Quirk will face Harper, Gerry, Crusader chucker who set down Yale with three hits. Gerry is the mainstay of the Holy Cross nine, batting fourth and as well as handling the pitching chores. Against Yale he collected a triple and a pair of singles, scoring two of the five runs.

Maguire will stick to the same lineup that he has been using all season, that lists all but Quirk as vets of World War II. Jack Barry, Holy Cross helmsman, after shifting and shuffling his lineup all season, plans to start the same nine that had such success against Yale.

Sox Need More Land for Lights

Representatives of the Red Sox today appeared before the Boston street commission in seeking an additional five feet of land the length of Lansdowne st., between Ipswich st. and Brookline ave.

John T. Hayes, Red Sox attorney, told Chairman Richard Casey of the commission, the club wants to erect two 147-foot-high towers in that section outside the left field fence for night baseball. Five other towers also are included in the plans.

No one appeared in opposition and Chairman Casey said he would take the petition under advisement for one week to give residents in the area a chance to voice an opinion.

Flashy Sir Race At Raynham's Meeting

By JACK CONWAY

GREYHOUND RACING will return to Massachusetts at Russ Murray's track at Raynham, Saturday night. Raynham has been allotted 44 nights of racing, while it is expected that six additional nights of racing will be given to the 101st Regiment Foundation. The 101st was Russ Murray's old regiment in World War I and he is eager to do everything possible for the charity fund of the 101st.

Since building Raynham Park, Murray has been more interested in raising money for deserving war charities than he has in making money for himself. Murray's track was the largest contributor to the Disabled Veterans' Fund of the American-Record-Sunday Advertiser.

"I know what it is to be a disabled veteran," said Murray when he was first asked to give his support to the Disabled Veterans' Fund. "When I came down the gangplank after the first world war, I was a hospital case. I had the same feelings then that thousands of American boys have today, and I shall do everything I can to help the disabled veterans."

Raynham Park's contribution to the Disabled Veterans' Fund was close to $150,000. It was an all-out effort for our sick and wounded war heroes.

Now that the war is over Murray wishes to continue to aid war charities, and he has already forced his track and its efficient personnel to the 101st Foundation.

Flashy Sir Returns
IF ONE WERE asked to name a greyhound that stood in his class with great horses like aault and armed, one would have to pick Flashy Sir. He is one of the fastest greyhounds that ever raced in New England, while he has with the experts like to call "racing sense". Flashy Sir always makes his move at the right time, and has proved one of the safest racing choices in the world.

Murray announces that Flashy Sir will be back at Raynham Park. Since he went to Florida last fall, Flashy Sir has scored numerous victories over Bit O' Buzz who also made a remarkable record in New England.

It is likely that Raynham Park will shatter all of its former marks for attendance, mutual handle and racing. The public will be rooting for it to do so as it knows how Murray sacrificed personnel profit during the war to aid war charities.

200 Nights of Racing
THERE WILL be 200 nights of dog racing in New England this season. Dighton will have 50 nights of racing. It will conduct its charity dates itself. The Dighton meeting will open as soon as Raynham closes.

Two weeks from Saturday night Wonderland Park will open its 100 nights of racing. Wonderland, George Heustis tells me, will have Irish greyhounds racing against the best of the American greyhounds.

With the dog tracks once more operating on full schedules the State as well as the various associations will benefit. The Federal government will also receive a large slice of the racing spoils in the form of admission taxes as well as in corporation and personal income taxes.

The full racing schedule will also furnish needed jobs for veterans.

'Fishing for Fun' Cape Club's Slogan

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

"Fishing for fun instead of food" is the slogan of the Shawnee Fish and Game Club, one of the oldest organizations of its kind in the country, located at Sandwich on the Cape.

We attended a meeting of the members, held at the Daniel Webster Inn, Sandwich, Monday evening, where Pres. Cliff Davis stressed the fact that all must strive in the interests of conservation by co-operating with the wardens, helping to prevent forest fires, and educating other sportsmen. "Throwing back fish is sport," he said. "It is not necessary to go out with the sole purpose of taking limit catches."

James Power, director of the Mass. Fisheries and Game Div., told the gathering that fishing licenses in the Bay State have already passed the 250,000 mark this spring—and this is only the beginning. He asked for the continued support of all outdoorsmen, adding that more funds would be needed to increase hunting and fishing facilities throughout the state.

Larger numbers of birds are expected to be put out from the State Game Farm at East Sandwich, according to Al Torrey, supervisor of breeding activities. Dan Murphy is raising several hundred pheasants for the Shawnee gunners.

Also present were Herman Curtis and Bill Orion, president and secretary, respectively, of the Barnstable County League of Sportsmen's Clubs, who are ardent conservation workers.

Warren Raymond, of Stoughton, famed for his duck calling at the Sportsmen's Show, gave a brief exhibition of the art. It was so realistic, in fact, that a passerby rushed in, demanding to know "where the geese were hiding."

ANGLING ANGLES: Jim Power fished Peters Pond Monday, without a bit of luck, then learned from Warden Pete Annis that Dr. Harry Shapleigh, Boston, had landed a 22-inch, 4½-pound brown trout there that same day.

The Director plans to take Pete along with him next time. Cliff Pond, Brewster, has been very productive recently, many trout being taken on shrimp. That no other sent strippers and fishermen lurking Monday.

Deadlock Looms In Hub Schools' Baseball Loop

By MIKE GILLOOLY

It wasn't too many weeks back that Boston College high school's baseball team—knocked off its undefeated stride in a shoddy, extra inning game by Boston English—was being counted out of the championship picture as far as the Schoolboys' Ass'n Braves Field Tournament was concerned.

But the Eagles have come screaming back so that now, through English misfortune, the Boston conference shapes up as a deadlock with a possible play-off pending to determine a possible berth in the Eastern title competition.

BCH rosters claim, of course, that the team never should have lost even that one decision. They insist that the club has the balance to hold its own in any company. And, in Dick Shellenback and Bernie Mulligan, the pitching staff can boast of two of the speediest schoolboys in the Greater Boston ranks. Mulligan has been good for only short stints on the mound because of torn ligaments but his arm is coming along strongly now.

Mulligan, when not called on for relief, moves into the outfield with Jack Casey and either Ed Harnett or Jack Linehan. Casey has been hitting his true stride this season, now that he's been moved out of the hot corner. His play fell off last spring but the shift has put him up among the best all-round players on the squad.

Then the mound corps will be strengthened this week by the return of Bob Clifford, captain of the track team. Clifford, another right-hander, has concentrated on the cinders this spring but he'll be back to help the Fella Gintoff club against Roxbury Memorial, Valerides Vocational and Hyde Park. His presence, along with Dave Crehan and Tom McElroy, a sophomore, will keep the Eagles well stocked in twirlers.

Coach Gintoff was able to make this shift when Jack Cattaneo showed so well at third, sharing that side of the infield with his younger brother Ray. At first base, Edmund Murphy is proving his worth now that he has shaken off his hitting slump while John Concannon, at second, is a natural in a winning combination. Capt. Walter Murphy, back after an absence forced by a broken finger, and Tom McLaughlin take care of the backstop.

Tough Task Ahead of B's

PHILADELPHIA, May 29—The Braves weren't in a very friendly mood today as they prepared to meet the Phillies under lights tonight at Shibe Park. They hadn't figured on playing an arc game before taking on the Dodgers for a double-header on Memorial Day. It wouldn't be so bad but they will have a three-hour bus ride back to New York after the Philly game. Last night's postponement allowed the Phils to arrange the game.

Manager Billy Southworth said he's stick to his plans of pitching Johnny Sain against the Phils and keep Ed Wright and either Jimmy Wallace or Mort Cooper in reserve for the Dodgers' twin bill.

Both Sain and Wright turned in sharp performances on their last starts. Sain beat the Reds, 5-1, under lights at Braves Field last Wednesday while Wright almost had a no-hitter against the Giants Friday night. He held them tight for seven innings only to allow a scratch hit in the eighth to Babe Young. Two errors in the ninth by Tommy Holmes and Connie Ryan on the same single tied the score.

Judge Sweeney Rules for Bedwell

Judge George C. Sweeney in federal court allowed today the motion of H. Guy Bedwell, Maryland race horse owner, to dismiss civil action brought against him by two Cleveland O. brothers. The brothers, Jack and James Zussy, brought action against Bedwell to recover damages for conversion of two race horses, Alimony Kid and Moroc, and for an accounting of the profits. Judge Sweeney said, "there is no allegation that the conversion occurred in this district."
